(Frederic rises and comes forward with Pirate King, who enters from B.U.K.)

King: Yes, Frederic, from to-day you rank as a full-blown member of our band.

All: Hurrah!

Fred.: My friends, I thank you all, from my heart, for your kindly wishes. Would that I could repay them as they deserve!

King: What do you mean?

Fred.: To-day I am out of my indentures, and to-day I leave you forever.

King: But this is quite unaccountable; a keener hand at scuttling a Cunarder or cutting out a White Star never shipped a handsipe.

Fred.: Yes, I have done my best for you. And why? It was my duty under my indentures, and I am the slave of duty. As a child I was regularly apprenticed to your hand. It was through an error—no matter, the mistake was ours, not yours, and I was in honour bound by it.

Sam.: An error? What error? (Ruth rises and comes forward.)

Fred.: I may not tell you; it would reflect upon my well-loved Ruth.

Ruth: Nay, dear master, my mind has long been gnawed by the cankerin tooth of mystery. Better have it out at once.

Fred, ric was a lit - tle lad he proved so brave and was a stu - pid nur - sry - maid, on break - ers al - ways soon found out, be - yond all doubt, the scope of this dis.
daring,
steering,
assembler,
His father thought he'd 'practise' him to,
And I did not catch the word right, through
But I hadn't the face to return to my place, and-some career seafaring.

I was, at last! his nursery maid, and
being hard of hearing.
Mis-taking my instructions, which with-break it to my master. A nursery maid is not afraid of-

so it fell to my lot
in my brain did gyrate,
what you people call work,
To take and bind the
I took and bound this.
So I made up my mind to-promising boy apprentice to a pilot.

Promising boy apprentice to a pirate.
Go as a kind of piratical maid of all work.
And
life not bad for a hardy lad, though surely not a high lot, Though sad mistake it was to make, and doom him to a vile lot, I that is how you find me now, a mem-bur of your shy lot, Which you

I'm a nurse, you might do worse than make your boy a pi-lot! bound him to a pi-rate—yoo! in stead of to a pi-lot! would'nt have found, had he been bound ap-ren-tice to a pi-lot!

Ruth: Oh, pardon! Frederic, pardon! (Kneels.)
Fred.: Rise, sweet one; I have long pardoned you. (Ruth rises.)
Ruth: The two words were so much alike!
Fred.: They were. They still are, though years have rolled over their heads. (Ruth goes up with Samuel.) But this afternoon my obligation ceases. Individually, I love you all with affection unspeakable; but, collectively, I look upon you with a disgust that amounts to absolute detestation. Oh! pity me, my beloved friends, for such is my sense of duty that, once out of my indentures, I shall feel myself bound to devote myself heart and soul to your extermination!

All: Poor lad! poor lad! (All weep.)
King: Well, Frederic, if you conscientiously feel that it is your duty to destroy us, we cannot blame you for acting on that conviction. Always act in accordance with the dictates of your conscience, my boy, and chance the consequences.
Sam.: Besides, we can offer you but little temptation to remain with us. We don't seem to make piracy pay. I'm sure I don't know why, but we don't.
Fred.: I know why, but, alas! I mustn't tell you: it wouldn't be right.
King: Why not, my boy? It's only half-past eleven, and you are one of us until the clock strikes twelve.
Sam.: True, and until then you are bound to protect our interests.
